Coronavirus (COVID-19) and Online Educational Resources

- New Census Bureau Resources for Distance Learning. The U.S. Census Bureau's Statistics in Schools (SIS) program created several new online resources for teachers, parents and caregivers to keep children engaged while distance learning.
- The NIH introduced a Spanish-language portal for COVID-19 Information. The site covers testing, treatments, vaccines, clinical trials, and more.
- The Washington Post has new reader guides: What you Need to Know about the Coronavirus Variants, and What You Need to Know About the Latest Stimulus Payments
- ProQuest launched a new website: The Black Freedom Struggle in the United States. It's a free, open resource for students, educators and others who are researching U.S. Black history. The site features over 2,000 curated primary-source documents related to critical people and events in African American history. Our intention is to support a wide range of students, independent researchers and anyone interested in learning more about the foundation of ongoing racial injustice in the U.S. - and the fights against it.
- PQDT Open from ProQuest provides the full text of open access dissertations and theses free of charge. You can quickly and easily locate dissertations and theses relevant to your discipline, and view the complete text in PDF format.
- MedlinePlus has new links for COVID-19 resources. You can now find information on COVID-19 vaccines and COVID-19 testing.
- Thinkalong™ is a free educational service of Connecticut Public, the parent company of Connecticut Public Television and Connecticut Public Radio, and the state's only locally-owned media organization producing TV, radio, print, web and digital content for Connecticut's wide-ranging and diverse communities.
- COVID Explained Newsletter provides list of resources of sites and organizations offering guidance for schools and parents on school-reopening.
- A new interactive database created by Kaiser Health News and The Guardian tracks the deaths of healthcare workers who died of COVID-19. The database can be searched by occupation, race, and state.
